01 What each side agrees to

01 "Confidential information" means information the disclosing party shares that is marked confidential, or that a reasonable person would treat as private — business plans, customer lists, designs, prices, code.

02 The receiving party uses the confidential information only for the purpose stated above, and shares it only with people who need it for that purpose and are bound to keep it secret.

03 Confidential information does not include anything already public, already known to the receiving party, or received lawfully from someone else.

04 The receiving party may disclose information when the law or a court requires it, after telling the disclosing party where it can.

05 When asked, the receiving party returns or destroys the confidential information and any copies.

06 These duties continue for 2 years after this agreement ends.

02 Duration

Starts	November 24, 2026
