QUESTION 1

Why do you want to study this course in Korea, at this university or institute, and why now?

Since September 2025 I have worked at a trekking agency in Thamel, where about a third of our guests come in Korean groups. I handle their bookings in English through a partner agency in Seoul, and I have seen that the agencies that win these groups have staff who speak Korean well. I want to study Korean full time for one year at the language institute of [university] in Seoul, because its regular programme has 20 hours of classes a week in small groups and a TOPIK preparation class. The evening classes in Kathmandu took me through the basics, but not to the level I need for business calls and written itineraries. My employer has agreed to my year away.

QUESTION 2

What is your Korean or English level now, and how will you reach the level your course needs?

I studied Korean for eight months at an evening class in Kathmandu and passed TOPIK I at level 2 in [month year]; the score report is attached. The institute will place me at level 2 or 3 after its test. My aim is TOPIK level 4 by the end of the year, the level my agency and its partner ask for in a tour coordinator. I will sit TOPIK in Korea after my second and fourth terms.

QUESTION 3

What will you study, term by term, and what do you aim to achieve by the end?

The regular programme runs in four 10-week terms a year, and I am applying for all four, starting in March 2027. Each term covers one level of speaking, listening, reading and writing, with a test at the end. In the first two terms I will finish the intermediate grammar I started in Nepal. In the third and fourth terms I will add the institute's business Korean and TOPIK classes. By the end I aim to hold TOPIK level 4, write a tour itinerary in Korean and handle a client's call without an interpreter. I do not plan to go on to a degree in Korea.

How much will your study cost, and who will pay for it from what income?

Tuition for the four terms is KRW 7.44 million (about NPR 8.3 lakh), which the institute asks applicants from Nepal to pay before the visa; I have paid it, and the receipt is attached. I have budgeted KRW 900,000 a month for a shared room, food, transport and insurance, about KRW 10.8 million for the year. My father pays from the poultry farm he has run in Bharatpur since 2012, registered with the municipality and with a PAN. His bank balance certificate, six months' statements from a Class A bank, his tax clearance and our relationship certificate are attached.

QUESTION 5

What will you do after the course, and what brings you back to Nepal?

I will return to my job at the agency, where the director has written that I will move from bookings to Korean-market coordinator, planning Korean groups' itineraries and handling the partner account, at a higher salary; the letter is attached. An agency with a Korean-speaking coordinator can deal with Korean agencies directly instead of through an interpreter. My parents, my sister in Class 10 and our farm are in Bharatpur. Later I want to run a desk for Korean groups at the agency.

QUESTION 6

Is there anything else the embassy should know, such as a gap, a change of subject or an earlier visa refusal? Leave it blank if not.

After my BBS results in January 2025 I had eight months before my job, in which I helped on the farm and started my Korean classes; the class certificate is attached. I have not been refused a visa for any country.
